To Whom It May Concern,

When it comes to putting your hard earned money into the hands of somebody else, you always feel a little nervous. Firstly, because you don't always know enough about the market yourself, and secondly there are a plethora of advisors out there making all sorts of promises. When I was first introduced to David Bojan through a friend, I had these exact same concerns. After the first meeting with David I felt much more at ease since David was very open, direct and honest about what was available to me based on how much I had to invest. He discussed not only different funds and strategies available, he also gave me a thorough overview of different markets, both established and emerging. I walked away feeling that I have found somebody that is truly interested in serving his client's needs. David is able to cut through the jargon that can be so confusing to somebody not well versed in the field of finances and economics, and he does so with a tremendous amount of insight and confidence. I have left many a meeting with a financial advisor feeling more confused going out than I was coming in. This was never the case with David. He takes his time to make sure that you fully understand exactly what is being proposed and never once did I feel pressured to make a decision I was not equipped to make.

In the past year I have been extremely happy with the strategy David helped put into place for me. He communicates changes in the markets and funds in a timely manner and answers all questions I have about my portfolio. I highly recommend David and his team to anybody looking for a financial advisor they can trust.
